

RESPECT SUPPLY OF THE THINGS WE BUY

The goods we buy don't just appear in our homes or the shops! In fact, most of the goods in our homes are imported and go through a long journey before they arrive in our homes. Take a can of baked beans for example.

The bean begins by growing in a field in a country overseas before it goes to a factory to be prepared and canned.

SUPERMARKET

The can travels inside a shipping container and is imported into Australia, arriving through our Ports where it is transported by rail and road to our local supermarket.

And that's where your parents come in! They purchase the beans from the supermarket and voila - the beans have finished their journey ending up on your toast!
